

Radio Chitkara's Special Interview with Baba Balbir Singh Seechewal

Radio Chitkara recently aired an exclusive interview with Padma Shri awardee, renowned environmentalist, social reformer, and Rajya Sabha member, Baba Balbir Singh Seechewal. The special segment focused on critical environmental issues, particularly water conservation, cleanliness, resource management, and the alarming depletion of natural resources in Punjab.

The interview was conducted on-site by Mr. Ripudaman Singh, amidst an ongoing cleanliness drive at Buddha Nallah near Gurudwara Gau Ghat Sahib in Ludhiana. This provided an insightful backdrop as Baba Seechewal actively supervised the efforts to restore the heavily polluted water body.

Commitment to Environmental Preservation

Baba Seechewal underscored the pressing need for collective responsibility in conserving and preserving natural resources. He emphasized that safeguarding Mother Earth is not just a governmental responsibility but also a moral duty for every individual. He passionately advocated for sustainable water management practices, waste reduction, and a cleaner environment to ensure a healthier future for the next generation.

Drawing from his extensive grassroots work, Baba Seechewal highlighted his model of community-driven environmental restoration. He elaborated on how localized efforts, volunteer participation, and awareness campaigns have significantly contributed to reviving Punjab's water bodies and maintaining cleaner surroundings.

Revitalization of Buddha Nallah

The discussion delved into the ongoing project at Buddha Nallah, one of Punjab's most polluted water streams. Baba Seechewal spoke about the need for strict pollution control measures, urging industries and citizens alike to adopt responsible waste disposal habits. He also stressed the role of scientific interventions and public participation in rejuvenating such water bodies, thereby improving overall environmental health.

A Call to Action

Encouraging listeners to be proactive, Baba Seechewal called upon individuals, institutions, and policymakers to adopt sustainable lifestyles. He urged people to minimize water wastage, participate in cleanliness drives, and support eco-friendly initiatives. His message resonated deeply, inspiring the audience to take small yet meaningful steps towards environmental conservation.

Conclusion

The special interview with Baba Balbir Singh Seechewal on Radio Chitkara was a compelling dialogue on environmental responsibility. His insights served as a wake-up call, urging society to work together for a cleaner and greener future. Radio Chitkara remains committed to spreading awareness and fostering community engagement in sustainability efforts.
